

Wasa Daily

Wasa Daily Nr 15 Sunday, April 12, 2026 — Our fourth Year — ISSN 2965-2456

Here we are:
www.vpress.fi
24/7

VAASA

Young Culture festival 17-18-4. Now the young people are taking over the library in Vaasa!

Forget everything you thought you knew about the library's silent reading rooms and stern gazes. On 17-18 April, a total transformation will take place when the "Youth Culture Festival" thunders into Vaasa's main library. It's not about whispering between the shelves – it's about being seen, heard and taking up space.

During a couple of intense days, the traditional premises are transformed into a boiling cauldron of creativity. Here you will find everything from heavy beats and live performances to gaming and creative workshops. The unique thing about the venture? It is the young people themselves who are in the driver's seat. By allowing the city's young people to be in-involved in planning the content, they have succeeded in creating a program that actually reflects what today's generation wants, rather than what the adult world thinks they need.

A library is often associated with history, but this Saturday is all about the future. By opening the doors to a cultural festival of this calibre, Vaasa is showing the way for how public spaces can be reclaimed and made relevant to a younger target group. Expect a high pulse, inspiration and the occasional surprise between the book lines.

It's time to dust off the image of the library – the party can begin!

Programme:

Friday 17.4 Vaasa Main Library
16.00 The event starts
16.30–17.30 Random Play Dance (Dramasalen)
17.30–18.30 Calligraphy workshop and Hanbok costumes (lobby)
18.30–19.30 Random Play Dance (Dramasalen)
20:00–21:30 Short film screening: short films and animations created by Vaasa youth (Dramasalen)

Saturday 18.4 Vaasa Main Library's Drama Hall

17:00–21:15 Live music, seven performances (more detailed schedules to be announced)

In the library's Matilda room, various works of art are on display throughout the week, including paintings and an interdisciplinary installation, created by Taikon students.

The event is free of charge and open to everyone.

Source: vaasa.fi

LOCAL NEWS

SFP

Thank you and hello, Parliament! Mikko Ollikainen throws in the towel

There will be no re-election for the Swedish People's Party (SFP) profile Mikko Ollikainen. The experienced politician has announced that he will not run in the next parliamentary election, which leaves a void in the party's ranks. After years of juggling between home and the capital, Ollikainen has decided that enough is enough. It is a heavy message for his voters, but perhaps a nice one for Mikko himself, who now avoids the late nights in the Riksdag building. Who will shoulder the mantle and fill his shoes remains to be seen – politics in Ostrobothnia is not likely to be the same.

Reference: SFP

KORSHOLM

Take a breather by the water – the archipelago's favourite place is now open!

Spring is here for real! Now the popular rest area in Fjärdskår has finally opened its doors for the season. From 2 April, coffee-hungry hikers and motorists can once again enjoy the sparkling sea views. It is the perfect stop for those who want to stretch their legs or just soak up the fresh archipelago air after a long winter. Whether you are passing through or planning a full-day excursion, the rest area is ready to welcome all spring-happy visitors. So pack your picnic basket and head to the coast – the season is officially underway!

Reference: <https://korsholm.fi/2026/04/fjardskar-rastplats-har-oppet-for-sasongen-fran-och-med-2-4-2026>

MALAX

The moment of truth in Malax – what is really hiding under the shirt?

Are you made of steel or is it mostly buns from the coffee break? Now the residents of Malax get the chance to get in black and white what the shape really is. On April 21 and 29, InBody measurements will be arranged where your body is analyzed down to the smallest detail. Forget the usual scale that only shows kilos – here you will find out everything about your muscle mass, fat percentage and even hydration. It's a golden opportunity for those who want to optimize their training or just get a healthy kick in the butt for the summer. Reference: <https://www.malax.fi/nyheter/inbody-matning-21-4-och-29-4>

Image of the Week:

Winter has gone

EDITORIAL

Trump's Actions Spark Catastrophe in Africa

It started with a stroke of a pen. A signature. An order. No more money. No more aid. The U.S. turned off the tap. And then, like a cascade of falling dominoes, the collapse began.

A year ago, we were warned about a catastrophe. Today, the bodies are counted. The Trump administration's 90 day freeze on almost all foreign aid, imposed on his first day back in office, has metastasised into a full scale withdrawal. The $68 billion annual U.S. foreign aid budget was slashed; USAID, once the world's most powerful humanitarian agency, was effectively shuttered by July 2025. Its staff collapsed from 10,000 to a skeleton crew of 15. The "stop work" memoranda issued by Secretary of State Marco Rubio didn't just pause programmes - they terminated thousands of grants, forced clinics to close, and sent tens of thousands of health workers home.

The HIV wards in Malawi, Zambia, Mozambique - places Trump probably still can't find on a map - are now silent. The President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR), which once supported 20 million patients and 270,000 health workers, saw its funding withheld, even as Congress allocated nearly $6 billion. The administration refused to release about half of the money. The result is not merely a pause but a reversal of decades of progress. In Tanzania and Uganda, clinics ran out of drugs; one clinic reported that a quarter of pregnant women with HIV gave birth to infected children. A woman, terrified by rumours that antiretrovirals were gone, had an unwanted abortion rather than risk bearing a child with HIV. A mathematical model published in May 2025 projected up to 74,000 excess deaths in sub Saharan Africa from the PEPFAR cuts alone. For South Africa, where PEPFAR covers 17% of the HIV programme, the withdrawal of U.S. support is projected to cause 565,000 additional new infections and 601,000 extra deaths by 2034.

And it's not just HIV. Ebola returned. On 4 September 2025, the Democratic Republic of the Congo declared its 16th Ebola outbreak, in Kasai Province. By the time it was contained in December, 53 people had died - a case fatality rate of more than 65%. The response was hampered by the same funding gaps that crippled everything else: logistics, diagnostics, protective equipment. A concurrent mpox pandemic raged across central Africa, worsened by the U.S. withdrawal from the World Health Organization, which left a $1.2 billion budget hole. In November 2025 alone, WHO Africa responded to 119 public health emergencies: Ebola, Marburg in Ethiopia, cholera, dengue, Rift Valley fever. Viruses don't respect borders. They travel. They kill. And the world's richest nation had decided to stop paying for the fire brigade.

But wait, it gets worse. The steep tariffs. The trade wars. In April 2025, Trump slapped "reciprocal" tariffs on most countries worldwide, wiping out the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA). AGOA, which for 25 years had given 32 African nations duty free access to the U.S. market, was allowed to lapse on 30 September. Lesotho's textile factories shut down; Madagascar faced the loss of tens of thousands of jobs. AGOA exports dropped 32% in the year ending November 2025. South African auto exports to the U.S. plunged almost 75%. The head of the African Continental Free Trade Area declared AGOA "no longer alive". Ghana's President Mahama said it was "technically dead". AGOA was eventually extended retroactively, but only until December 2026, and its benefits were overridden by new tariffs. The message was clear: America First means Africa nowhere.

And famine follows. Famine is a slow, cruel killer. It takes the children first. By late 2025, an estimated 41.8 million people in West and Central Africa were already in crisis or worse. For the June-August 2026 lean season, the World Food Programme warned that 55 million people would endure crisis levels of hunger, with over 13 million children suffering from malnutrition. In Nigeria's Borno State, 15,000 people faced the risk of catastrophic hunger for the first time in nearly a decade. The WFP could reach only 72,000 people in Nigeria in February 2026, down from 1.3 million a year earlier. "The reduced funding we saw in 2025 has deepened hunger and malnutrition across the region," said Sarah Longford, WFP's deputy regional director. And all this while the Trump administration, on 7 January 2026, suspended all aid to Somalia, accusing the government of destroying a WFP warehouse and seizing food aid.

This isn't an accident. It's a choice. Nobody demanded that the U.S. fund Africa forever. But cutting off aid overnight? Leaving millions without a safety net? That's not policy. That's sadism. It's like yanking the ventilator mid surgery and saying "good luck."

And the world is watching. Europe, China, Russia. All staring, but nobody moves. Nobody catches the falling. Because it's just Africa, right? Just a few million anonymous Black bodies. Trump's new National Security Strategy, released in November 2025, mentions Africa in just three paragraphs - as a source of critical minerals and a counter to China. The "Trump Corollary" recasts the continent from partner to price tag. Aid is now transactional: in December, the U.S. delayed $1.5 billion in health aid to Zambia, conditioning it on access to critical minerals. The senior U.S. advisor for Africa, Massad Boulos, said "our job is to promote US interests" - not to save lives.

Trump's probably smiling right now. He kept a promise. Saved taxpayer money. His voters cheer. But the virus mutates. The famine grows. And death is patient. It'll come knocking on many doors eventually. And then he started the war against Iran, making everything much worse. In Africa things were so bad that they could not get worse. But they could! And they will!

What's a few million dead in Africa, as long as the president makes America rich again?

Image: NASA

LAIHIA

The hidden traps of the forest - watch out for the "flying" roots!

An ordinary walk in the woods in Laihia can end in disaster if you are not careful. The municipality is now issuing a sharp warning for root rolls after the recent strong winds. When large trees are blown over, enormous tension is created in the uprooted roots. If you climb on the tree or start sawing into it, the root roller can suddenly strike back with violent force and crush everything in its path. Keep children and pets away from the fallen giants and show respect for the forces of nature. Safety first, even when the mushroom forest beckons!

Reference: <https://laihia.fi/2026/03/23/varoitustuulenkaatojen-juurakot/>

VAASA

Now it's rolling! Lifti gears up with new buses and drivers

Public transport in the Vaasa region is facing a major facelift. Now it is finally clear who will take over the wheel of Lifti from 2027. With a new transport operator at the controls, major investments in the fleet and modern calendar purchases also await. The goal is smoother journeys and fresher vehicles for all commuters. Even though it will take a while before the new buses roll into the stop, Vaasa residents can already start looking forward to a greener and more efficient journey. It looks like the public transport of the future has finally shifted into the next gear!

Reference: Vaasa.fi

VAASA

Unleash your inner Picasso - art is taking over the whole city!

Make room for creativity! Between 11 and 19 April, the area will be transformed into a colourful arena when the event week "Capture the art" takes place. It is about celebrating basic art education and showcasing the enormous talent that exists in children and young people. There will be everything from music and dance to visual arts and theatre for the whole penny. It's a perfect opportunity for anyone curious to discover new hobbies or just enjoy local creation. Don't miss the chance to experience the magic when the stars of the future prove themselves!

Reference: <https://www.sttinfo.fi/tiedote/71931682/fanga-konsten-evenemangsvecka-for-grundlaggande-konstundervisning-11-194>

VAASA

Digital wedding in Vaasa - now the IT giants are getting even stronger

Vaasa's tech world is booming! The experts in industrial digitalization, Huld, are now joining forces with the IT giant Gofore. The merger will create a real heavyweight in the market that can offer even sharper solutions for the industry of the future. For customers, this means more muscle and broader expertise under one roof. Vaasa thus consolidates its position as a Nordic hub for technological innovation. Congratulations on the collaboration - in the digital world, it is clearly the size that matters when offering the best solutions.

Reference: <https://www.sttinfo.fi/tiedote/71928433/vaasassa-toimiva-teollisen-digitalisaation-asiantuntija-huld-yhdistyi-goforeen>

Photo Supplement

NEWS

PUBLIC TRANSPORT

Millions for new buses

Lifti is preparing for the future. It is now clear which transport operators will be allowed to drive the municipality's buses from 2027 – and which investments await.

The joint public transport committee of Vaasa and Mustasaari has chosen Länsilinjat Oy as the new operator on the main lines of Lifti and Scania Oy as the supplier of biogas buses. They will start operating at the beginning of 2027 and the new buses will be put into use in the spring. Through these acquisitions, Lifti will be developed into an even more functional, low-emission and attractive public transport hub.

In the recent procurement, several players are pointed out as winners. The new agreements mean both more departures and a more modern fleet. Material acquisitions include electric buses with a longer range, as well as new charging stations to be expanded along the trunk lines.

"The sharp increase in Lifti's passenger numbers in recent years shows that there is a clear need to develop public transport and that the region's residents have received the service well. Thanks to the decisions that have now been made, we can continue the development in the years to come and, together with the municipality of Mustasaari, transport operators and vehicle suppliers, offer passengers a public transport that is of higher quality, produces lower emissions and has better capacity," says Pertti Hällilä, Traffic Manager of the City of Vaasa, in a press release.

For passengers, the change mainly means more frequent trips and better comfort. The new buses are expected to run from January 2027. In total, it is about investments of several tens of millions of kronor.

An review shows that Lifti is at the same time tightening the climate requirements. Only vehicles that meet the strictest emission standards are allowed to take part in the game. Several old diesel buses will thus be phased out.

Vaasa residents can thus look forward to greener and more punctual public transport – albeit with a few years of waiting.

Source: STT Info, 7.4.2026

VAASA

Hello young people! Do you have a brilliant idea? Here is the money!

Do you have a fantastic idea but lack the capital to realize it? Now's your chance! A whopping €2,000 is up for grabs and is waiting to be distributed to fun projects and events created by young people, for young people. Whether it's a local tournament, a concert, or a creative workshop, it's time to submit your application now. It's a unique opportunity to take matters into your own hands and create something meaningful for your group of friends or the whole city. Show what you're made of – the future is yours!

Reference: Vaasa.fi

WELLBEING SERVICES

THE WELLBEING SERVICES COUNTY

Unique lifeline for young people: Now the drug death will be stopped

Drugs claim too many young lives, but now the wellbeing services county is gearing up in the fight for survival. The Uniikki project invests heavily in the prevention of drug-related deaths among young people. It is a lifeline that is needed more than ever when addiction creeps further and further down the ages. By being there early and offering concrete tools, they hope to be able to reverse the tragic statistics. It's about saving lives before they have even had time to really start.

Every young person who can be guided away from the darkness is a huge victory for the whole of society.

Reference: Wellbeing services county

THE WELLBEING SERVICES COUNTY

Goodbye loneliness! A hundred new places for those who want to live together

No one should have to sit alone at the dinner table if they don't want to. The wellbeing services county has now reached a milestone and can boast of almost a hundred places in so-called community housing. This is the modern solution for those who need a little support in everyday life but above all long for company and social interaction. No more quiet corridors; Here, the community is at the center. By offering a place where you can be "together yet independent", you create a whole new kind of quality of life for those who need it most.

Reference: Wellbeing services county

EXHIBITION

EXHIBITION

Fabulous textiles on display in Vaasa

At first glance, it looks like a fairy tale. But it's for real. From 31 March to 19 April, Galleria 2 at Art Center Torni in Vaasa will be filled with warm, colourful textiles – all in the spirit of wool. The exhibition "Villan lumo" offers almost fabulous jackets, hats, home textiles and accessories. The works are written by five dedicated women: Pirkko Jokinen, Anelma Lehto, Erja Rinne, Maritta Sandler and Heli Vuorenmaa. They have worked with felting – mainly in wool and silk, but also silk fabrics such as chiffon and sari silk. "An entire room is filled with clothes," says one of the artists. Don't miss the spring lier hat!

Free admission. Pitkäkatu 66, Vaasa.

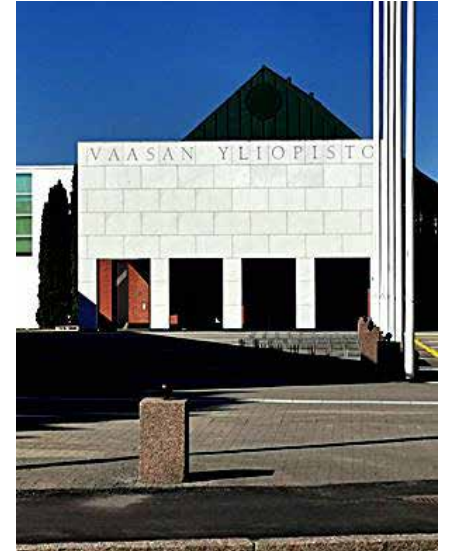

UNIVERSITIES

UNIVERSITY OF VAASA

Vaasa is growing fast – now there will be even more life on campus!

The University of Vaasa has drawn the winning ticket in the Ministry of Education and Culture's latest award. As many as 45 new study places will land in sunny Vaasa to meet the crying need for expertise.

It's not just about more student overalls in town, but about a real vitamin injection for the entire region's business community. By investing in education, the aim is to ensure that the professionals of the future are present when companies are calling for people. For Vaasa, this means a real boost in the competition for the brightest minds. Just dust off the school desk and welcome the new abilities to the coast! Reference: <https://www.sttinfo.fi/tiedote/71924456/vaasan-yliopisto-sai-ope-tus-ja-kulttuuriministeriolta-45-lisaalotuspaikkaa>

UNIVERSITY OF TURKU

The nicotine trap in vocational school – friend pressure decides?

It is a smoky (and shabby)

Reality that manifests itself in Finnish vocational schools. A recent report shows that young people who choose vocational education use nicotine products to a significantly higher degree than their peers in upper secondary school. But it's not just about bad character; It is in the corridors and in the social interaction that the choices are made. The school community and closest friends play a crucial role in whether you light a cigarette or put in a snus. Breaking the trend requires more than just pointers – it requires a change in the entire social environment where young people move around daily.

Reference: <https://www.sttinfo.fi/tiedote/71884762/ammattiin-opiskelevat-nuoret-kayttavat-nikotiinituotteita-huomattavasti-muita-enemmän-nuorten-terveysvalinnat-rakentuvat-yksilön-lahipiirin-ja-kouluyhteisön-vuorovaikutuksessa>

UNIVERSITY OF TURKU

The sleep that lowers the brain – are you a dangerous sleeper?

Do you dream of sleeping all day? Think again! A new doctoral dissertation throws gravel into the machinery for anyone who loves sleeping mornings. Research shows that both too long a night's sleep and constant sleep problems are linked to poorer cognitive ability. So it's not enough to just "catch up" – quality and balance are key to keeping your brain in shape. In fact, lying under the covers for too long can make you more sluggish than

VAASA

Ekobonus inspires Vaasa residents to take environmental action: apply now!

Med anledning av Vasas Green Leaf-år kan föreningar och invånargrupper i Vasa ansöka om 100–1000 euro i Ekobonus för att genomföra evenemang, jippon, små investeringar eller andra insatser som anknyter till Green Leaf-årets teman. Ansökningstiden för Ekobonus är 1–26.4.2026, och ansökningar kan inlämnas på vasa.fi/ekobonus.

Den första ansökningsomgången för Ekobonus i november–december 2025 väckte stort intresse, och därför ordnas en ny ansökningsomgång i april 2026.

– Ekobonus-projekten kommer att synas som olika evenemang och jippon för invånarna under året. Vi vill att så många grupper som möjligt ska få vara med och göra konkreta miljöinsatser, berättar Eva Bligt-Lindén från Vasa stad.

Ansökan är öppen för alla, men de som inte fick Ekobonus i den första ansökningsomgången har nu företräde.

Källa: Vasa stad

Wasa Daily

Nearly everything You want to know, in eight pages

vpress.fi

THE WELLBEING SERVICES COUNTY

The Wellbeing Services County of Ostrobothnia develops services for children and young people with neuropsychiatric disabilities

The Wellbeing Services County of Ostrobothnia is developing services for children and young people with neuropsychiatric disabilities as part of the national project Rehabilitation in Everyday Life for Children and Young People with Neurodevelopmental Disabilities (Spectrum Project). FBA is funding the project. The aim of the project is to make the everyday life of families smoother and to provide children and young people with timely support in their own upbringing.

A large number of children and young people have features of neuropsychiatric disabilities. In particular, there have been challenges in providing timely support, coordination of services and cooperation between different actors. The aim of the Spektrum project is to strengthen the early multiprofessional support of the child and family in everyday life and to create clearer service packages.

"In many wellbeing services counties and schools, the same questions are being considered regarding children and young people with neuropsychiatric disabilities. Through the Spektrum project, we want to encourage professionals to develop together in the social welfare and health care and education sectors, and between different fields," says Riina-Maria Leskelä, Project Manager of the national Spektrum project.

"There are already good, research-based measures and treatment models. For example, the Good Medical Practice recommendations contain guidelines on what support and treatment should look like. However, the areas need support to apply the recommendations in practice in a child- and youth-oriented manner. In the hectic everyday life, professionals and services easily examine things from their own perspectives.

Each wellbeing services county has defined the priorities of development work and decided on the distribution across different age groups based on the characteristics of the area. In the Wellbeing Services County of Ostrobothnia, the maternity and child health clinic teams are being developed. A multidisciplinary cooperation has been initiated with the City of Vaasa's early childhood education and care. With the funding received by the Wellbeing Services County of Ostrobothnia, a project coordinator has been hired for the period 2.5.2025-31.12.2026. The project coordinator's tasks include, for example, coordinating the development of the maternity and child health clinic team's activities and organising the integration of early childhood education and care into the maternity and child health clinic team you think. So set the alarm clock to a reasonable time if you want to stay sharp; Your brain will thank you once you wake up properly!

Source: Wellbeing Services County

Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71856284/vaitos-pitkaunisuus-ja-uni-vaikudet-ovat-yhteydessa-heikomman-kognitioon>

UNIVERSITY OF TURKU Cheer the mistakes! How to make mistakes smarter

Stop getting depressed about the red pen in the margins! A new dissertation concludes that it is actually good to make a fool of yourself sometimes – at least when you are studying. Making mistakes during the learning process is not only common, it can actually increase motivation and lead to a deeper understanding of the topic. Instead of aiming for perfection right away, pupils and students should embrace their stumbling blocks. It is when we are forced to correct our own thoughts that the real knowledge sticks. So the next time you answer a question wrong: congratulate yourself, you're just getting a little smarter!

Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71908926/vaitos-virheid-en-tekeminen-opinnoissa-on-yleista-mutta-se-voi-lisata-motivaatiota-ja-edistaa-syvallista-oppimista>

ÅBO AKADEMY Bitter daters or charming winners? Sexism's hidden connection to single life

How is it really going on Tinder? A new study from Åbo Akademi University shows that how we perceive our chances on the dating market is linked to our view of the opposite sex. It turns out that people who feel successful in the pursuit of love tend to have different attitudes than those who constantly get turned down. The connection between perceived opportunities and various forms of sexism is clearer than previously thought. So it's not just about personality, but about how the balance of power in the dating game affects our prejudices. Maybe it's time to examine your own opinions before swiping on to the next date?

Reference: <https://www.abo.fi/nyheter/upplevda-mojligheter-pa-dejting-marknaden-ar-kopplade-till-olika-former-av-sexism/>

UNIVERSITY OF OULU Pollen shock in the exam hall – a runny nose lowers maths grades

Sneezing, watery eyes and... A failed math test? For thousands of graduates, spring is not just a time of celebration, but a battle against pollen. A new study shows a clear correlation between high pollen levels and poorer results in the matriculation examination. The mathematical subjects are worst affected, where concentration is required the most. It is simply difficult to solve complex equations when the brain is foggy with allergy reactions. For the affected students, this is no small thing – a few sneezes at the wrong time can actually affect future plans. It's high time to give allergy sufferers an honest chance even during flowering time!

Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71911376/siitepolyaltistus-yhteydessa-yltioppilaskokeiden-tuloksiin-vaikutus-suurin-maattisissa-aineissa>

UNIVERSITY OF TAMPERE The revenge of the super-seniors: More and more 90-year-olds are skipping home care

Who really needs help? A new trend shows that more and more Finns who have passed the respectable age of 90 are still living at home – without official care or home care services. This group of "super-seniors" challenges the image of the frail elderly and shows an impressive independence. Despite their advanced age, they manage everyday life on their own, which both saves society's resources and gives the individual a better quality of life. It seems that today's 90-plus-year-olds are made of tougher wood than we imagined. To be able to grow old in one's own home, on one's own terms, is the new dream for the oldest generation.

Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71916491/yha-useampi-yli-90-vuotias-asuu-kotona-ilman-virallista-hoittoa>

UNIVERSITY OF JYVÄSKYLÄ

Millions of rains over hot flashes – now menopause is about to be broken!

Women's health is finally getting the attention it deserves – and with good reason! The Jane and Aatos Erkkö Foundation has opened its wallet wide and is donating millions to the University of Jyväskylä for research on menopause. It's not just about sweating and mood swings, but about understanding the profound biological changes for real. Now the researchers hope to be able to provide answers that make life easier for millions of women. It is high time that we take the "change" very seriously, and with these millions behind us, the future looks much cooler and more pleasant.

Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71930626/miljoonarahoitus-vaihdetuositutkimukseen-jane-ja-aatos-erkkon-saatiolta>

MIELI Dark clouds over her well-being – the crisis phone is glowing with heavy calls

The mental situation in the country is becoming increasingly gloomy, warns the organization MIELI. Those who seek help are now feeling worse than ever before, and the problems that land with the crisis workers are more complex than before. It is no longer just about temporary stress, but about deep crises that require heavy efforts. The pressure on helplines and clinics is enormous when desperation is increasing in society. It's a cry for help: we have to start listening before it breaks completely for those who are already balancing on the edge. No one should have to bear their darkness alone.
Reference: <https://www.stinfo.fi/tiedote/71911185/kriisiapua-hakevien-ongelmat-entista-vaikeampia>

VAASA When the brain plays tricks – lecture on the mystery of psychosis

What happens when reality suddenly starts to sway? In Vaasa, an important lecture is now being held at the Alma Adult Education Centre to shed light on a topic that is often hidden in the shadows: psychosis. It's not just about the patient, but very much about the relatives who stand by when the world falls apart. Understanding what happens in the mind when the psyche takes an unexpected turn is the key to better support. It promises an evening filled with facts and empathy, perfect for anyone who wants to know more about how we support when their thoughts go astray.

Wednesday 15.4.2026 at 6–8 pm, the

NEWS

AROUND THE MOON

THE MOON SUCCESS: They landed after the historic journey first manned lunar mission in over 50 years and is a critical test for the next step: actually setting foot on the moon's surface by 2028.

In addition to the technological advances, the crew has enchanted the world with high-resolution images of "Earth rises" from the far side of the moon. Now extensive medical check-ups and a long-awaited reunion with the families in Houston await.

lecture will be in Finnish. Reference: vaasa.fi

BOOKS

RIIKKA PURRA
Finland's Thatcher? Now comes the book about Purra

Now the book about Riikka Purra has been released, "Riikka Purra - Finland's Iron Lady". The book promises in-depth analyses of the hard-line power players of the True Finns. Expectations are high - and so are the critics. The question is whether the book will be a declaration of love or a nail-biter. Is she Finland's Thatcher? Source: STTinfo

RUSSIA

MOSCOW
Empty on Red Square? Putin's parade craze is stopped by drone fear

It is usually Russia's proudest moment, but this year it echoes empty on the streets of Moscow. Mayor Sobyenin trembles on the cuffs at the risk of new drone attacks and now chooses to pull the handbrake. The traditional military parade on Victory Day on 9 May is cancelled in its usual form. No rumbling tanks or heavy weapon systems will be allowed to roll through the heart of the capital this year. What the celebration will actually look like is still shrouded in mystery, but safety takes precedence over pride as the threat from the sky draws ever closer to the Kremlin. Reference: Telegram

COUNCIL OF RENT
Oil pipeline in flames after drone shock - now the governor is sweating

Panic is spreading in the Leningrad region after a violent attack on the port of Primorsk. Ukrainian drones have once again managed to penetrate the defenses, and the result is devastating: flammable material is leaking out and columns of smoke are rising into the sky. The governor was quick to confirm that an entire oil pipeline had been damaged, but now scathing criticism is directed at both the military and the local government. How could such a strategically important port stand so unprotected? At the same time as the clean-up work is underway, questions are growing about how Russian infrastructure is really doing under the constant attacks. Reference: Telegram

PETROL PRICE
Empty tank and hole in wallet - Russians' summer will be an expensive affair

Forget cheap petrol and sunny road trips. The Russian summer looks like it will be a test for both patience and wallet. Prices are soaring and local fuel shortages are now being reported from large parts of the country. Experts warn that the critical situation is not just temporary, but part of a larger global and internal process that cannot be stopped. Trying to bunker fuel in the garage is futile - the shortage is here to stay. For the average Russian, a summer awaits where every mile becomes a struggle against rising numbers on the meter board. Reference: Telegram

PROHIBITION
The Patriarch's Ultimatum: No War Victory Without an Abortion Ban

Now the church is interfering in the warfare at the highest level. Patriarch Kirill sends a gloomy signal directly to Putin: victory in the North Caucasus is impossible as long as abortions are allowed in the country. According to the leadership of the Church, it is not weapons or strategy that determine the course of the war, but moral purity. "God will only listen if Russia listens to the church," is the message from the inner circles. By linking military success with a total ban on abortions, the patriarch is putting heavy pressure on the Kremlin. It remains to be seen whether Putin chooses to trade legislation for the hope of victory. Reference: Telegram

CLIMATE CHANGE

EUROPE
Europe is warming twice as fast - experts are panicking

"We are not ready for what is to come" Europe is warming twice as fast as the rest of the world. Over the past five years, the temperature on our continent has been as much as 2.4 degrees above pre-industrial levels. Now the EU's Scientific Climate Council is sounding the alarm: adaptation measures are far too weak. The extreme heat alone killed an estimated 24,000 Europeans in the summer of 2025, and the economic damage lands at a staggering €45 billion a year. "Robust risk management is not voluntary - it is about protecting lives and livelihoods," said the Council President. Politicians get five pieces of advice into the bargain. The only question is whether anyone is listening. Source: Europaportalen.se, EU Scientific Climate Council 17 February 2026

CLIMATE CHANGE
UN sounds the alarm: "All climate indicators are red"

"Now it's serious - for real" The years 2015 to 2025 were the eleven warmest ever recorded, the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) states in its new report. "All climate indicators are glowing red," says the UN Secretary-General. The ocean has absorbed more than 91 percent of the heat from emissions - equivalent to 18 times the total energy consumption of humans during the same period. The ice in the Arctic was at a record low, Antarctica's ice extent the third lowest ever. And the changes don't stop here. They will affect us for hundreds, perhaps thousands of years to come. So maybe it's time to take this summer's heat waves seriously? Source: SMHI/WMO, 23 March 2026

FINLAND
Winter with little snow punishes Finland - drought threatens harvests and electricity prices

"Winter fooled us - now comes the bang" Finland hardly got any snow last winter. And now the price is starting to be paid. Yle's forecast shows that lakes and groundwater levels are at record lows - especially in Eastern Finland. Saimaa is expected to be half a metre shallower than normal this summer. The consequences? Harvests are at risk of failure, forest fires can ravage and hydropower, which accounts for 10-20 percent of the electricity supply, may have problems delivering. The authorities have already started to cut off flows from Saimaa to save the levels. A dry summer awaits - and perhaps more expensive electricity bills. Source: Yle News, 5 April 2026

CLIMATE CHANGE
Climate breaks the wallet - 43 billion euros up in

At 8 p.m. on Friday evening local time, humanity reached a new milestone. After ten dramatic days in space, the Artemis II crew splash-landed safely in the Pacific Ocean - a success that opens the door for future bases on the moon.

The whole world held its breath as the Orion capsule hurtled through the atmosphere at a staggering 40,000 km/h. After an intense "fireball return," during which the capsule's shield endured temperatures of 2,700 degrees, the craft descended into the ocean off the coast of San Diego under three giant parachutes.

"We succeeded. This is just the beginning, NASA's control center announced after the four astronauts were confirmed to be in good health.

The crew - Commander Reid Wiseman, Pilot Victor Glover, Space Specialist Christina Koch and Canadian Jeremy Hansen - have circled the Moon during the journey and reached further away from Earth than any human before. The trip marks the

Images: Credit NASA

NEWS

TRAFFIC PARK

Onkilahti traffic park opens on 8 Mayaj

Now the children can finally steer on their own wheels – the Onkilahti Traffic Park in Vaasa opens its doors on Friday 8 May, where a 640-metre miniature city awaits with traffic lights, a railway crossing, a roundabout and even your own bus.

Welcome to a world where you drive a police car, ice cream truck or red sports coupe – all in the safety of your car. In Onkilahti Traffic Park (formerly Onkilahti), children between the ages of 6 and 12 can pedal away with the park's own pedal cars and bicycles. The youngest, 4–6 years old, can also join in if an adult walks next to them.

The whole of Vaasa in miniature

The traffic park is like a dream magazine: along the track there are models of the City Hall, the railway station, old wooden houses in Hietalahti, Alkula, an ice cream kiosk in Kalasatama, the university, a house at Kirkkoesplanadi 23, buildings from the barracks area, a farm from Vähäkylä, the clock tower from the ruins of Old Vaasa and the water tower. There is also a small square, roundabout, traffic lights, level crossing, the Lifti bus – and a filling station.

It's not just the speed that attracts me. Along the course, a fascinating journey of discovery awaits through a miniature Vaasa. No less than twelve meticulously recreated models of the city's iconic buildings, such as the City Hall, Water Tower, and Railway Station, line the road. There is also a market square, roundabouts, traffic lights and level crossings – all to create as authentic a city experience as possible on a child-friendly scale.

"Onkilahti Traffic Park is like Vaasa in miniature and offers both children and adults a wonderful environment to learn traffic and have fun," said Service Manager Jarmo Latvala at the opening a couple of years ago, and the park really lives up to that promise.

How it works

The drive takes place in 20-minute tours, which are booked on site at the gate. Each tour starts with choosing a vehicle, adjusting the seat and having basic traffic rules explained to you. The active run lasts about 15 minutes. In case of heavy rain, the park is closed for safety reasons.

One ride per day and children – so that as many people as possible get the chance. The times are awarded with color-coded wristbands.

Opening hours from 8 May
• Monday–Friday 12:00–18:00
• Saturday–Sunday 12:00–

16:00

Price: Free!

Age recommendation driving: 6–12 years (4–6 years with an adult at the side)

Important: Wear a bicycle helmet! Loaner helmets are available on site.

Your own vehicles are not allowed.

Groups book an appointment by email to the City of Vaasa's Youth Services. More information can be found on the city's website.

Welcome to step into spring – at Onkilahti Traffic Park, every turn is a lesson in joy

Source: City of Vaasa / Youth Services

ART

The super success at the MET – now Schjerfbeck's paintings are on the way back to Finland

New York got to enjoy Finnish mastery – for this time. After weeks of record-breaking crowds, Helene Schjerfbeck's long-awaited exhibition "Seeing Silence" at The Metropolitan Museum of Art is over.

Thousands of visitors flocked to Manhattan to pay tribute to the artist, who has long been an unknown name in the United States. But now the paintings are on their way back to their home turf in Finland.

"The exhibition became a hot trend in cultural circles," says a spokesperson.

Schjerfbeck (1862–1946) became the first Finnish artist to have his own solo exhibition at the Met. Max Hollein, the museum director, hailed her as "an extraordinary artist" with a "unique vision".

For Finnish art lovers, however, it is comforting that the works are now back home. But the question is: when will they show up in a Finnish hall? A decision is still missing.

Helene Schjerfbeck, Fragment, 1904. Oil on canvas, 12 3/8 x 13 3/8 in. Villa Gyllenberg / Signe and Ane Gyllenberg Foundation, Helsinki Photo: Matias Uusikylä / Signe and Ane Gyllenberg Foundation smoke in one summer

"Insurance refuses to pay – now the crisis is here" Heat waves, torrential rain and drought in the summer of 2025 cost EU countries as much as €43 billion in damage, according to a new WWF report. The worst affected are Italy, France and Spain. And the worst thing is that only 5–20 percent of the losses were covered by insurance. The rest? That bill lands on ordinary people and taxpayers. WWF warns that cumulative losses could reach €126 billion as early as 2029 if nothing is done. "Our forests, mangroves and wetlands are our best protection – they must be at the heart of strategies," says WWF's director. Otherwise, it will be expensive. Really expensive.

Source: WWF European Policy Office, 15 January 2026

CLIMATE CHANGE

EU puts its climate foot in the gas – 90 percent emissions target nailed "Damn it – here comes the green straitjacket" On March 5, 2026, the EU Council of Ministers passed the stricter climate law. The new statutory target: reduce net greenhouse gas emissions by as much as 90 per cent by 2040, compared to 1990 levels. At the same time, the EU's carbon tariff CBAM has come into full force from 1 January this year. This means that imported cement, steel, aluminium, fertiliser and hydrogen will have a price tag that reflects the climate impact. "A milestone for fair competition," says the European Commission. For companies that do not change? It will be expensive to be the climate villain. Source: European Council, 5 March 2026 and EU Climate Action, January 2026

POLITICS

GREENS

ALARM: One in six children in Finland will soon be poor

Finland is facing a gloomy social crisis. According to Green Party leader Sofia Virta, the current government's policy will lead to almost one in six children soon living in poverty. The extensive cuts in social security are now hitting the country's families with children hard and directly.

Virta is sharply critical of Orpo-Purra's government and believes that it is deliberately choosing to increase the gaps. Child poverty is not just about money and cents, but about a greatly increased risk of exclusion and poorer health throughout life.

"It's a choice to let the children pay the price for politics," thunders Virta in a recent statement.

Source: <https://www.sttinfo.fi/tiedote/71938469/sofia-virta-hallituksen-politiikan-seurauksena-pian-lahes-joka-kuudes-lapsi-suomessa-elaa-koyhyudessa?publishid=69818932&lang=fi>

UKRAINE PRESIDENT

Olena Zelenska Spoke to Fox News About Ukrainian Children Living Under Russian Aggression

The first step in rescuing Ukrainian children abducted by Russia is finding information about them; the second is strong international pressure on the aggressor state. First Lady of Ukraine Olena Zelenska stated this in an interview with Fox News.

The President's wife noted that Ukraine is seeking every possible way to influence Russia and thanked the United States and U.S. First Lady Melania Trump for their advocacy and involvement in returning Ukrainian children abducted by Russia.

"Right now, with tremendous effort, we are bringing children back in small groups, while thousands of others are effectively spending their childhood in isolation, without the possibility of returning home. That is why it is important for more countries and public figures to get involved," the First Lady emphasized.

Olena Zelenska noted that returning children is not only about crossing the border, but also about ensuring family-based care, housing, education, and access to medical and psychological assistance.

"We hope for the support of our international partners in this as well. Because we have so much to return to our children. First and foremost - their stolen childhood," she said.

The President's wife also spoke about her participation in the Fostering the Future Together summit of Melania Trump's initiative, which took place at the White House.

"It is encouraging that we - people from all over the world who gathered at this event - share the view that we must protect children in an era of rapid technological development. Children must know how to use technology safely, have digital hygiene skills, and make AI their assistant, not a substitute for learning.

This is a very important initiative by Ms. Trump," Olena Zelenska stressed.

She noted that digitalization is precisely what helped Ukraine maintain public services and education for children during the full-scale Russian invasion.

"Due to the fact that Ukraine is a developed digital state, we were able to establish distance learning for a third of our schoolchildren who cannot study in person. I therefore hope that the development of digital solutions will give our children additional opportunities in life - and that it is these opportunities, not war, that will shape their future," Olena Zelenska concluded.

ART EXPERIENCE OF THE WEEK

Magnus von Wright
13.6.1805, Haminalahti
5.7.1868, Helsinki
Horses, after Carl Wahlbom, 1864
Finnish National Gallery Collection / Ateneum Art Museum
Photo: Finnish National Gallery / Hannu Pakarinen

COPYRIGHT: The Presidential Office of Ukraine. All materials featured on this site are licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International. The use of any materials posted on the website is permitted provided you link to www.president.gov.ua regardless of full or partial use of materials.

George Orwell

1984

25

The Party told you to reject the evidence of your eyes and ears. It was their final, most essential command. His heart sank as he thought of the enormous power arrayed against him, the ease with which any Party intellectual would overthrow him in debate, the subtle arguments which he would not be able to understand, much less answer. And yet he was in the right! They were wrong and he was right. The obvious, the silly, and the true had got to be defended. Truths are true, hold on to that! The solid world exists, its laws do not change. Stones are hard, water is wet, objects unsupported fall towards the earth's centre. With the feeling that he was speaking to O'Brien, and also that he was setting forth an important axiom, he wrote:

Freedom is the freedom to say that two plus two make four. If that is granted, all else follows.

Chapter 8

From somewhere at the bottom of a passage the smell of roasting coffee--real coffee, not Victory Coffee--came floating out into the street. Winston paused involuntarily. For perhaps two seconds he was back in the half-forgotten world of his childhood. Then a door banged, seeming to cut off the smell as abruptly as though it had been a sound.

He had walked several kilometres over pavements, and his varicose ulcer was throbbing. This was the second time in three weeks that he had missed an evening at the Community Centre: a rash act, since you could be certain that the number of your attendances at the Centre was carefully checked. In principle a Party member had no spare time, and was never alone except in bed. It was assumed that when he was not working, eating, or sleeping he would be taking part in some kind of communal recreation: to do anything that suggested a taste for solitude, even to go for a walk by yourself, was always slightly dangerous.

There was a word for it in Newspeak:

OWNLIFE, it was called, meaning individualism and eccentricity. But this evening as he came out of the Ministry the balminess of the April air had tempted him. The sky was a warmer blue than he had seen it that year, and suddenly the long, noisy evening at the Centre, the boring, exhausting games, the lectures, the creaking camaraderie oiled by gin, had seemed intolerable. On impulse he had turned away from the bus-stop and wandered off into the labyrinth of London, first south, then east, then north again, losing himself among unknown streets and hardly bothering in which direction he was going.

'If there is hope,' he had written in the diary, 'it lies in the proles.'

The words kept coming back to him, statement of a mystical truth and a palpable absurdity. He was somewhere in the vague, brown-coloured slums to the north and east of what had once been Saint Pancras Station. He was walking up a cobbled street of little two-storey houses with battered doorways which gave straight on the pavement and which were somehow curiously suggestive of ratholes. There were puddles of filthy water here and there among the cobbles. In and out of the dark doorways, and down narrow alley-ways that branched off on either side, people swarmed in astonishing numbers--girls in full bloom, with crudely lipsticked mouths, and youths who chased the girls, and swollen waddling women who showed you what the girls would be like in ten years' time, and old bent creatures shuffling along on splayed feet, and ragged barefooted children who played in the puddles and then scattered at angry yells from their mothers. Perhaps a quarter of the windows in the street were broken and boarded up. Most of the people paid no attention to Winston; a few eyed him with a sort of guarded curiosity. Two monstrous women with brick-red forearms folded across their aprons were talking outside a doorway. Winston caught scraps of conversation as he approached.

"'Yes,' I says to 'er, 'that's all very well,' I says. 'But if you'd of been in my place you'd of done the same as what I done. It's easy to criticize,' I says, 'but you ain't got the same problems as what I got.'"

'Ah,' said the other, 'that's jest it. That's jest where it is.'

The strident voices stopped abruptly. The women studied him in hostile silence as he went past. But it was not hostility, exactly; merely a kind of wariness, a momentary stiffening, as at the passing of some unfamiliar animal. The blue overalls of the Party could not be a common sight in a street like this. Indeed, it was unwise to be seen in such places, unless you had definite business there. The patrols might stop you if you happened to run into them. 'May I see your papers, comrade? What are you doing here? What time did you leave work? Is this your usual way home?'--and so on and so forth. Not that there was any rule against walking home by an unusual route: but it was enough to draw attention to you if the Thought Police heard about it.

Suddenly the whole street was in commotion. There were yells of warning from all sides. People were shooting into the doorways like rabbits. A young woman leapt out of a doorway a little ahead of Winston, grabbed up a tiny child playing in a puddle, whipped her apron round it, and leapt back again, all in one movement. At the same instant a man in a concertina-like black suit, who had emerged from a side alley, ran towards Winston, pointing excitedly to the sky.

'Steamer!' he yelled. 'Look out, guv'nor! Bang over'ead! Lay down quick!'

'Steamer' was a nickname which, for some reason, the proles applied to rocket bombs. Winston promptly flung himself on his face. The proles were nearly always right when they gave you a warning of this kind. They seemed to possess some kind of instinct which told them several seconds in advance when a rocket was coming, although the rockets supposedly travelled faster than sound. Winston clasped his forearms above his head. There was a roar that seemed to make the pavement heave; a shower of light objects pattered on to his back. When he stood up he found that he was covered with fragments of glass from the nearest window.

HUMOUR ONE HUND-RED YEARS AGO

WIDOW

The teacher asked: — can one of you explain to me what "widow" means.. — A widow, answered little Anna, is a wife who lived with her husband for so long that he died.

SWIMMING COMPETITION.

Little Karl was with his mother at a swimming competition. Now follows - said the mother - 100 meter breaststroke for ladies. Little Karl: — Mother — is it forbidden to use the arms?

EINSTEIN

— Has the lady read Einstein's theory of relativity? — Well, yes, I'll wait until it comes out as a film.

SEEN WITH YOUR OWN FEET

— I have a good friend who usually says that you never know anything about anything until you have seen with your own feet where the shoe pinches.

MAIL MAN

"Where have you been, my little darling?" asked little Albert's mother, when he came home after being gone for a couple of hours. "Yes, we were out with Kalle and Olle playing postman," answered the darling. "Oh really! How did it happen then?"

»Well, we went around to all the houses around here and put letters in all the boxes.» "But were they really real letters?"

»Yes then!»
»Where did you get them from then?»
»Yes, yes, find them in mother's desk drawer. It was open, and they were so beautiful and there was a whole bunch of them tied with red silk ribbons.»

DANGEROUS

A.: »Is dyeing the hair as dangerous as the doctors say?"
B.: »Yes, it is even more dangerous! One my old uncle once tried to dye his hair and less than in three months he was married to a widow with 7 children.

THE NARROW ROAD TRAVELER.

Salvation Army Lieutenant (fishing for a soul who has been following the meeting devoutly):
"Are you, my friend, travelers of the narrow road?" "I am."
"So you believe in Jesus?"
"Not particularly."
"You don't believe in Jesus and yet you say you are a traveler of the narrow road! How is that to be understood?"
"I am a circus artist and my profession is to walk on a wire."

THE WRONG SIGN.

While walking along Avenue A in New York, a couple of men noticed a sign in the window of a tavern that had in large letters the words:

"lei on parle francais."

One of the men, who was well acquainted with the area, said: "I'll bet you that no one in that den knows French."- They made a bet, this was in the old wet days, and so the friends went inside to find out. Here a red-haired Irishman came to serve them. He was evidently the landlord of the tavern.

One of the friends who had learned some French while at sea said something to the landlord in French which meant 'the weather is beautiful today'. "Yes, two drinks at quarter past four," replied the landlord.

It was clear, then, that French was unknown in this place. "Why do you have that sign in the window that says 'French is spoken here?'" asked the guest of the landlord.

"Don't be silly! Is that what it says?" wondered the landlord, and when the guest, with knowledge of the matter, assured him that that was what the sign meant, the landlord began to curse, saying, "That bunch of Jews deceived me. I bought the sign with that dollar when it explained that it was in Latin and meant 'God bless our home.'"

Astronomic picture of the week:

The Earth seen from Artemis II on April 3

NASA astronaut and Artemis II Commander Reid Wiseman took this picture of Earth from the Orion spacecraft's window after completing the translunar injection burn. There are two auroras (top right and bottom left) and zodiacal light (bottom right) is visible as the Earth eclipses the Sun.

Image credit: NASA/Reid Wiseman
Public domain

BLOG WRITERS

Join Wasa Daily as a Blog Writer! Are you passionate about sharing your thoughts, stories, or expertise with the community? Wasa Daily is looking for enthusiastic blog writers to contribute engaging content for our readers.

Whether you love writing about local events, culture, lifestyle, business, or personal experiences, we welcome your voice!

Writing for Wasa Daily is a great opportunity to reach a wider audience, connect with fellow locals, and showcase your creativity. No prior experience is needed—just bring your ideas and enthusiasm! We value diverse perspectives and fresh voices that reflect the vibrant spirit of our community.

Interested? Send us your blog pitch or a short sample, and let's get your words published! Join us in making Wasa Daily a platform for meaningful conversations and inspiring stories.

Contact us at wasadagblad@gmail.com for more details. We can't wait to hear from you!

WASA DAILY

A modern newspaper with a layout with features of the press of the 1870s. Back then, newspapers had only 4-8 pages. Lots of text, but no images at all, so there's a lot to read on a few pages. Our paper is one of the very few newspapers in English serving English-speaking inhabitants in the Osthrobotnia region

The magazine contains quotations from old daily newspapers taken from the National Archives (digi.kansalliskirjasto.fi). GPT3, Gemini, Aria and Monica do some of the routine editing work, such as translation, corrector reading, and short notice writing. All texts have been checked by journalists and the editorial staff is responsible for all the content of the texts.

Wasa Daily is a daily newspaper type publication, so far it is published on Sunday mornings. But our goal is for it to come out every morning in the future. The magazine is available online for free.

Editor-in-chief Hans Björknäs. Readers' writings are welcome! The magazine is locally owned and will remain so. For ever!

Editorial office: Wasa Daily, Koulukatu 37 B 7, 65100 Vaasa, tel. +358-40-5462455.
Helsinki editorial office: Wasa Daily, Toinen linja 9 B 36, 00530 Helsinki. Phone +358-40-5462455.
Email: wasadagblad@gmail.com

FROM OUR READERS

We very much welcome submissions from our readers. Comments, stories, memories, debate, news from home. Probably this will be the most important part of this spring paper. But space is limited, so please write as short as possible! So please send posts to: wasadagblad@gmail.com

ADVERTISE

Being among the first to advertise in this historic and hyper-modern daily may have some PR value. Send ads to wasadagblad@gmail.com

WASA DAILY

wasadagblad@gmail.com

HOROSCOPE FOR APRIL 2026

April Horoscope – The Stars Are Mumbling (And Maybe Making Some Sense)

- ☐ Aries (March 21 – April 19)
You're full of energy and initiative, but don't pick a fight with the coffee machine – it always wins.
- ☐ Taurus (April 20 – May 20)
Your patience will be tested this April. Maybe it's time to accept that sighing loudly won't make the checkout line move faster.
- ☐ Gemini (May 21 – June 20)
You have a thousand ideas and zero time to execute them. Try finishing one thing before jumping to the next – or just embrace the chaos!
- ☐ Cancer (June 21 – July 22)
April might be an emotional month, but remember: no one expects you to save the world... just to deal with your own stuff.

- ☐ Leo (July 23 – August 22)
You love being the center of attention, but maybe let someone else tell the joke at the coffee break – just once.
- ☐ Virgo (August 23 – September 22)
You have a plan, a backup plan, and a backup plan for the backup plan. Breathe – the worst that could happen is... well, not much, really.
- ☐ Libra (September 23 – October 22)
Decisions are tough. If you're spending over an hour choosing what to eat, maybe that's a sign you should just cook something yourself. Or not.
- ☐ Scorpio (October 23 – November 21)
Your magnetism is at its peak. Use it wisely – or you'll once again find yourself at a party you don't know how to leave.
- ☐ Sagittarius (November 22 – December 21)

Your adventurous spirit is soaring, but maybe start small? Like taking a different route to work before booking a one-way ticket to Mongolia.

- ☐ Capricorn (December 22 – January 19)
Your hard work is finally paying off! Soon, you can reward yourself with something big – like an overpriced coffee, guilt-free.
- ☐ Aquarius (January 20 – February 18)
Your ideas are brilliant, but not everyone is ready for them yet. Maybe wait a bit before suggesting that all meetings should be replaced by memes.
- ☐ Pisces (February 19 – March 20)
You're daydreaming more than ever. That's adorable – as long as you remember to get off at the right bus stop.
- ☐ The stars whisper – but you do whatever you want anyway!

